As Ohio begins to slowly re-open for business, we’ve heard that many of you need hard-to-find PPE items (masks, hand sanitizer, wipes, disinfectants, face shields, etc.) to safely open your doors. We’ve also heard from several members who are currently producing or able to secure PPE.

With nearly 1,900 members, we have an opportunity to support one another and our local economy. We’re building a database of both - those who need PPE and those who produce PPE - to better connect you with each other.

Every community has a bias thinking their own community is special or unique. Well I am here to tell you that Stark County IS a very special and unique place! This has been put on display through many examples of caring found in our school systems throughout the county during this COVID-19 experience.

First and foremost, our community made sure our school children are fed. As of this writing, a rough estimate of over 100,000 meals have been deployed through our school systems during this “stay at home” order. Through essential employees, known as the “lunch ladies,” personal connections, conversations and well-being check-ups are made. So, the first good news is that meals are available to any family in any Stark county school system, no questions asked.

Secondly, our students are advancing in their studies thanks to our teachers who have quickly adapted to a more broad use of technology to plan lessons and communicate with their students. But this would not be possible without the support of our cable companies such as MCTV and Spectrum who are providing 60 days of free internet access to households with school age children. We are grateful for the many personal relationships within these cable companies who can assist in special circumstances to help struggling households.

And lastly, in this time of crisis, our school systems support our communities. Our area hospitals needed PPEs such as goggles, gloves, and face shields. Through the network of school superintendents and principals from the middle and high schools, two cargo vans of supplies were collected and delivered to Stark County’s hospitals within three days of the ask. Every school system stepped up to the plate to collect items from their science and career tech programs that could be used by our health care workers on the front lines. Yes, we ARE a special community based on the many personal relationships in our community and yes, there IS good news in times of crisis. Stay safe and healthy!

Five Sources of Quick Cash

FOR YOUR SMALL BUSINESS

Even more than being profitable, cash flow is the true barometer of the health and strength of your small business. Getting your business into cash flow-positive territory, however, is much easier said than done.

For a new business owner, managing cash in and cash out can be a daily struggle. It’s often a cyclical challenge where the money coming in needs to go immediately back out leading to cash deficits along the way. This can cause strain when it’s time to pay vendors, get products to market on time and in just about all other areas of your business.

It’s easy to see how cash is your business’ lifeblood. Regular cash flow management is your best bet for staying ahead of your financials.

Even with the best planning, however, small businesses can still feel a serious cash crunch now and then. When you need cash fast, there are several routes to consider.

5 WAYS TO OBTAIN CASH QUICKLY

1. Get Paid Upfront
Cash flow, much like the term implies, is an ebb and flow of cash coming in and cash going out. When more is going out than coming in, you need a way to break the cycle and give your receivables a chance to catch up.

There are ways to encourage clients and customers to pay upfront for products or services not yet rendered. The simplest and more common method is with a gift card program. Gift cards are an inexpensive way for customers to pay you before any action is necessary on your part. That equates to cash coming in faster and gives you the chance to get cash flow back into positive territory.

2. Collect Payments Due
Getting paid upfront is key. Just as crucial is collecting payments from customers when they’re due. Not surprisingly, customers aren’t going to bang down your door with a check-in their hands. Clients may need a friendly reminder that payment is due.

There are a lot of ways to better ensure customers and clients pay on time. You can shorten your payment terms across the board or do so just for those clients who are chronically slow to pay. Shortening 30-day terms to 15 days, or 60-day terms to 45 days is an acceptable practice that can make a serious dent in a company’s cash flow deficit. However you choose to collect payments from customers, clearly communicating the changes along the way will ensure you maintain strong client relationships while better protecting your cash flow.

3. Slow Your Payments
As you’re evaluating terms for customer payments, take a look at the terms your vendors have in place and find opportunities to slow your payments. Slowing the pace at which cash flows from your business can also help reduce potential cash deficits.

If a vendor grants you 30-day payment terms, take advantage of those terms and save check writing until the end of that period. You can successfully manage your accounts payable to pay vendors on time and still keep as much of your cash for as long as possible. As long as you’re not late in paying a vendor and remain in good standing with strong credit, slowing payments is an effective way to stay in the black.

4. Factoring
Factoring is a less common form of cash flow management for businesses in need of quick cash, but it can be highly effective for those companies who face slow-paying customers or are unable to shorten a customer’s payment terms. A business can sell its invoices or other accounts receivables to factoring firms. The factor writes the business a check minus a factor fee giving the business immediate cash in the bank.

Startups can also use factoring as a strategic way to secure cash flow. Most startups don’t yet have the credit history needed for certain types of small business loans. Since factors look at the ability of the customer to pay when assessing risk - not at the credit history of the business - factoring can be an easy source of quick cash for a young company.

5. Borrowing from Alternate Sources
When all else fails, borrow cautiously. Many entrepreneurs will borrow from their personal funds before they’ll let their business go under. Many experts agree that this is the right move if it means keeping yourself afloat. But, like with everything, there’s a right way and a wrong way to borrow. And, as you would with any bank, have a plan to pay yourself back.

If you decide to borrow, start by liquidating inventory, equipment and depositing cash owner equity. If you have a line of credit, meet with your bank and discuss options such as keeping your line open and whether increasing your credit line is an option they’re willing to explore.

TAKE ACTION & CREATE A PLAN

Getting your hands on cash quickly isn’t always easy. The sooner you take action to break the negative cash flow cycle the better. The good news, though, is that there are multiple ways to secure the cash you need to boost your cash flow into positive territory.

One of the best ways to protect your business from the damages caused by a cash flow deficit is with the support of a SCORE mentor. Your mentor will help you evaluate your financials and create a plan to stay cash flow positive. Contact a SCORE mentor today.

Stark County Safety Council

COVID-19 UPDATE

In compliance with orders from the State of Ohio, the May 9th Stark County Safety Council monthly luncheon has been cancelled. Safety Council members will be awarded one meeting credit for every meeting cancelled.

The CEO Breakfast and Crime Prevention Breakfast will be rescheduled at a date to be determined.

As this situation takes us closer to the end of the fiscal year, BWC is reviewing policy and legal requirements to determine flexibility with program requirements. When decisions are made regarding the Ohio Safety Council rebate program, we will share them with you.

SCSC will continue to provide our members with relevant information regarding the coronavirus, safety programming, and safety tips.
Get to know the young professionals who will shape the future of Canton/Stark County! Each month, we’ll introduce you to a YP who is living or working, but most importantly, thriving in Stark County!

Name: Amanda Sainato
Age: 35

Occupation/Title/Place of work: Healthcare/Practice Administrator/Hematology & Oncology Associates, Inc.

Why are you interested in Stark County’s Young Professionals initiative?
I think that it being involved in the area you both work and reside in, is important to assure you have a pulse of the community. Knowing how people are being impacted daily only helps you serve more thoughtfully.

What would you share to encourage other people to join?
That doing things to impact your community create more opportunities for all. Local is the way to go.

Did you grow up in Stark? If so, where? If not, where did you move from and why?
I did. Hartville! Still live in my childhood home that was purchased from my parents, whom purchased it from my grandparents.

Why do you stay in Stark County, from both a personal and professional point of view?
I stay for numerous reasons, but I have 4 small children which ultimately grounds me here. I wouldn’t want to raise my family anywhere else. I feel they are getting a great public school education at Lake, in safe environment with great resources. We have access to many great Stark County parks and activities.

What do you like MOST about Stark County?
It feels like home. Access to both urban and rural within minutes if needed. Experience farm country and be in the city to go to a museum or eat at a good restaurant.

What would you change about Stark County if you could?
There are a lot of folks in more “upscale” areas like Hartville, that are below the poverty level; however, too proud to ask for resources. Non-Profits like “Love our Community” in Hartville are working hard to build concepts to support people in these areas. There are many opportunities to encourage more professional leaders in local non profits to make greater impact.

What do you see as valuable opportunities for YPs in Stark County when it comes to career opportunities, cultural access, leadership or community involvement opportunities?
Healthcare field can both be very taxing and rewarding. There are numerous private practices locally and two great hospital systems available for stable work. We have great charitable organizations that always need leadership involvement to help move the bar and gather exposure from community leaders which can create excitement and funding dollars.

What would attract more YPs to Stark County?
Truth be told, knowledge. I know a lot of YP’s that know nothing about opportunities. Additionally, when you look directly into the “Canton” specific area - people don't see shiny and new.

What do you do in the evenings or on the weekends for fun in Stark County or NE Ohio?
For me as a mom, I look at children’s activities. PARKS!!! Can’t wait to get outside more. Biking and hiking is big for our family. Any free events for the kids throughout the summer. We love going to museums and being apart of festivities (balloon fest/HOF). As just adults, it is all about going to a nice restaurant, whether it is Canton/Belden or Akron and having a good meal.

Could you see yourself spending your lifetime in Stark County and if not, what would cause you to leave?
Absolutely!! My entire family is here and I can’t imagine being anywhere else. Ultimately, I would love to have a vacation home at the beach someday, but ultimately this will always be HOME!

Innis Maggiore, the nation's leading positioning ad agency, today announced the hiring of two new associates. Chris Carter is the agency’s new IT manager and Josh Lopez has been added as copywriter.

Carter comes to Innis Maggiore from Gannett Co., where he served as an IT technician. He served in the same capacity at GateHouse Media Inc., prior to its acquisition of Gannett. Carter also has experience as a DevOps engineer/software engineer at Ingenium Group, Ltd. A resident of Stow, he earned a bachelor’s degree in computer information systems with a minor in forensic science from Youngstown State University.

Lopez was hired following an internship at the agency last fall, when he wrote website copy, blog articles and Google Ads for the agency’s clients. A resident of Cuyahoga Falls, he holds a bachelor’s degree in entrepreneurship from Grove City College in Grove City, Pa., and a master’s degree from Cardiff University in Wales.

The Pro Football Hall of Fame, a number of dedicated philanthropists and Gate Gourmet – a global leader in providing prepackaged food products for the airline industry – are partnering in a nationwide effort to deliver meals to people affected by the COVID-19 pandemic.

Called “Project Isaiah,” the initiative already is bringing more than 250,000 boxed meals per week to recipients at no cost to them. In a secondary benefit to the communities served, the project also has saved hundreds of jobs.

Project Isaiah not only provides much-needed food to the virus-affected cities, but it also is keeping Gate Gourmet employees at work while U.S. airlines deal with the travel restrictions profoundly affecting that industry.

JTEK Solutions Group has announced the official opening of its Home Access Design Studio will be on May 1st at 950 South Main Street, North Canton, Ohio. JTEK, in collaboration with Josh King Designs, local suppliers as well as national brand vendors, created this upscale, first-of-its-kind-design studio to incorporate the company’s full range of premium products and services throughout the space. Founder and President, Joseph R. Chevraux and his son, Jared Chevraux, VP of Operations, both hope that this space will provide a place to show their customers such as seniors, children and adults living with disabilities, injured workers and disabled veterans how to improve the quality of one’s life at home and for JTEK to make a positive impact in the community. They largely attribute the company’s success to taking the time to understand its customer’s abilities, diagnosis and long-term needs when creating solutions.
